

THE HEROES & LEGENDS SHOW

Paul & Friend

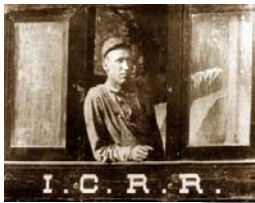

Paul Odenwelder can simply charm any age audience with his masterful guitar playing and singing. He should, with 25 years of playing professionally. He played at the Grand Ole Opry, The Kennedy Center and Rockefeller Center.

Everyone has their heroes that have made a lasting impression on them as children. We as Americans share our stories and our unique folklore that inspires us. Paul's Heroes and Legends looks at four of these special individuals.

Davy Crockett

Casey Jones

Casey Jones

You'll join Paul at his campsite, complete with a tent, a log for a stool and camp fire. Okay, it's not really a real campfire but it wiggles and shimmers like a real one ... and the kids love it. He has everything in the tent he needs, but he has some difficulty in finding things. It's hilarious!

Look out! Casey Jones is coming and you can hear him. Davy Crockett is still having grand adventures. Paul Bunyan and Babe The Blue Ox are adding to and changing the scenery. And with John Henry and the Peabody Steam Drill contest the children become two teams cheering on their team's champion. Of course there is lots of music and audience participation throughout the show.

John Henry

The show is forty five minutes long and can be adjusted to various age groups and is also great as a show for the whole family. The singing, the laughter and the great stories all come together in this memorable show.
