

DISCOVERS THE 5 SENSES

Professor Atom has done it again, he's discovered the five senses!

Dan Lusk brings, his character, the funny and wacky Professor Atom to life in this new show that explores the wonders of our five senses.

Kids get to learn the facts about our ability to see, hear, touch, smell and taste in his portable laboratory of fun.

He has lots his scientific looking stuff that includes:

- The Smell-O-Meter...how do we smell things...do boys smell funny?
- No Pop Solution... Keeps balloons from popping and making a lot of noise.
- The Futurematic 2700...Helps find out what things feel like now and in the future
- Head Expander...Explores how we see and optical illusions.
- Bud the Taste Bud...a puppet who has great taste...bad jokes and loves kids.

Professor Atom adds liberal amounts of audience participation to beakers full of fun and mixes it all together with the 5 senses science facts. The program is so much fun that the kids don't realize that they're learning until after the show is over. This 40 to 45 minute program has different versions suitable for preschoolers, kindergarten and elementary school age children. It works well in libraries, preschools, elementary schools and family elements.
